

Try #3: “Through consensus, we decided not to hear you complaint” - James Henningson

Each of my previous attempts at having a conversation about this were closed and archived on the day they were posted. So here's try #3. Because violating the rules and policies is a big deal.

James and the board have violated the rules about formal complaints. James, speaking for the board, said they would not hear my complaints in a special meeting or at the next meeting, which is required by our rules.

Moderators, you can let this conversation die a natural death, or you can kill it and I will try again to have a conversation about this. Silence me if you think you must, but that will only prove my point.

Our point that you can't accept reality and move on? Hot damn I've been trying to prove that for weeks.
