

An Open Letter to Mark Havens

bertberaht #23 April 13, 2022, 7:14pm

Just one more stating of the obvious. Critters self divide until groups and sometimes a few befriend some in the other group. Substitute Republicans & Democrats, or Cowboys & Eagles, or cats & dogs, etc. The whole posting was an unnecessary irritating of electrons that led to even more irritated electrons ... just as I am doing, LOL!

I think that this might belong in this thread. He's either trying to start a new makerspace, or claim that he's part of one, is my read on this post. (Photo below is you don't want to check out the link)

It appears a number of members are now receiving postcards at their home addresses from Mr. Havens.

Some people he knew, some he never even met like my wife.

It seems an extremely odd way of trolling, and is frankly a bit creepy.

The guy needs professional help. His vendetta with some people at the Space is spilling into others lives.

Does anyone have his contact info? I'm willing to contact him and politely ask him to stop.

Lol. What did it say?

“A bit creepy” in 2022 is sending post-cards at all to non-family members or non-best-friends. Actually filling out post cards and going through the effort of mailing them for people he doesnt even know based on a tie to an organization he was banned from comes off as downright pathologically obsessed.

Postcards to my house will promptly discover that they've written a VERY interested letter to the Church of Scientology.

Got mine today...I was starting to feel left out:

Hmmm...clearly something is not quite right here; I think may have gotten this heartfelt note that was meant for someone else because he says he could always count on my smile. The thing is I smiled once in my 30's, but I am pretty sure it was what caused my herniated disk, so I never did it again.

If you think this note was intended for you, let me know and I'll put it in your PSB so you'll have something to treasure as the years go by and remind you of fond memories of a clinical narcissist you once knew.

The only thing that would make his endeavor worthwhile is if there was some cryptic message in all of these postcards, and you needed to compile all of them together to decipher the message.

they might spell out “please help, I’m lonely because I creeped out all my former friends”

At one point Mark contacted me I think on Facebook messenger wanting to know if I wanted to do one of his interviews to discuss DMS. I assume he was looking for more people to complain about the space. He said he got my name and info from me viewing his YouTube videos. I never responded, and he went away. It was definitely creepy that he was stalking people like that.

Discussing these events in an open forum makes it far easier for the instigator to judge their effectiveness.

Thanks. I didn’t notice that. I will rectify my error.

Effectiveness? Seems like the effect he had is to further convince the group that he’s a creep that should have been kicked out sooner than he was!

I dunno... I mean, for all his study, his reactions when people called him on his bullshit struck me as ... thoroughly disinterested and possible clueless. Somewhere between high-functioning spectrum and down-right sociopath.

Psychopath vs Sociopath vs Narcissist

What’s the difference between psychopath, sociopath and narcissist? Although, there is no major difference in the three kinds of personalities, their attit
